

NEWS RELEASE

April 4, 2002

TWICE A DAY FUELWATCH UPDATES TO BENEFIT MOTORISTS

FuelWatch, Australia's premier fuel price monitoring service, has announced that fuel prices will now be updated twice daily on the FuelWatch website, to provide more up-to-date fuel prices for motorists.

FuelWatch users will now be able to access updated prices each morning and afternoon, Monday to Friday, ensuring they have access to timely and reliable information potentially leading to greater savings. FuelWatch National Manager, Matt Forman, said that motorists will be the ultimate winner from the expansion of services.

"There are already so many motorists benefiting from the fuel prices we supply, and now that we are able to update them more frequently, motorists will be better informed when it comes to purchasing fuel at the best possible price".

FuelWatch has also recently implemented a system to incorporate fuel prices from Service Station owners and operators Australia-wide with the launch of ePriceBoard. The system presents FuelWatch with the opportunity to expand the coverage of its monitoring service, giving motorists nationwide access to the cheapest fuel prices in their region.

"We are very excited about the expansion to our services, with motorists able to access more timely information, in addition to gaining access to fuel pricing information from all over Australia," said Mr Forman.

"FuelWatch will continue to build on the services already provided to ensure that motorists continue to benefit."

For the latest fuel prices or to register for a free email alert visit fuelwatch.com.au

For media inquiries please contact: Matt Forman on +61 7 3367 8544 on 0409 998 726